Valuing the stock of urban tea is incredibly difficult, and any metric should be seen as part of a larger picture of Urban Tea's overall performance. However, analysts routinely use some key metrics to help measure the value of a stock. Urban Tea's P/E ratio to Urban Tea's current share price divided by its earnings per share (EPS) over a 12-month period gives a final price/earnings ratio of about 0x. In other words, Urban Tea shares trading around 0x recent gains. This is relatively low compared to, say, the final 12-month P/E ratio for the NASDAQ 100 at the end of 2019 (27.29). The low p/e ratio could mean that investors are pessimistic about the outlook for stocks or simply that they are undervalued. This figure is reduced by 27% compared to 179,137 last month. There are some different ways that this level of interest in the mind of Urban Tea actions can be evaluated. Urban Tea's (SIR) Urban Tea short interest ratio is the amount of Urban Tea shares currently short divided by the average amount of Urban Tea shares traded daily (most recently around 278357.44680851). URBAN URBAN TEA SIR stood at 0.47. In other words, for every 100,000 Urban Tea shares traded daily on the market, approximately 470 shares are currently short. However, urban tea's short interest can also be assessed in relation to the total number of Urban Tea shares, or, against the total number of urban tea translatable shares (shares that are not held by insiders or large long-term shareholders - also known as the float). In this case, the short interest of Urban Tea could be expressed as 0.02% of the shares outstanding (for every 100,000 existing Urban Tea shares, approximately 20 shares fall short) or 0.0165% of the translatable shares (for every 100,000 translatable Urban Tea shares, approximately 17 shares fall short). Such a low SIR usually points to an optimistic outlook for the share price, with fewer people currently willing to bet against Urban Tea. Learn more about booking urban tea stocks. We don't expect Urban Tea to pay a dividend over the next 12 months. Urban Tea share price volatility Over the past 12 months, Urban Tea shares have ranged in value from as little as $0.2 to $14.6. A popular way to assess the volatility of an action is its beta. What are you doing? U.S. volatility(beta: 1.29)Average volatility(beta: 1.00)LowHighBeta is a measure of a stock's volatility relative to the market. The market (average Nasdaq) beta is 1, while Urban Tea is 1.2931. This suggests that Urban Tea shares are more volatile than the average for this exchange and represent, in relative terms, a higher risk (but potentially also returns that would beat the market).
